This wave is crashing down on me

Give it up! Give it up!

That's what you did when you felt

That all hope was lost

Now the tides have turned as you watch me float

Lifeless in the sea

And now this wave is crashing down

On me

Well that must have been quite the battle

How would I know

You never even fired a single shot

If only I was approached on this warfront

We might have made it out

But anxiety was a shark

Found lurking in your pool of blood

I learned from the struggle and found my own way out

Tread water

And as this tide pulls me under

I can see the surface fading away

While separation came suddenly

And secrets were concealed

But we both knew what we were up against

Stabbed with infatuation, nights seemed endless

You showed no signs of life

Just remember: refusal is better than emptiness

At this rate I have a better chance of finding penguins in Texas
