There's a little girl next door every day he passes her, and looks away
'Cause he knows she'd see right through him (Hey you little blue eyed girl)
Don't you ask about the world we live in (than the world we live in)

Watching all the cars go by Catching all the strangers eyes, that she can
She sees though them
(Hey you little blue eyed girl)
He wonder what it is she knows and if he could ever be fearless once again

(2x):
In the end will we find out
all of the answers
Will we always need to pretend
When we step inside of the mirror
And in the end
falling faster, falling back Holding closer to the world we live in (than the world we live in)

Never looks behind her back

Stepping over all the cracks that time has made They weren't there when he was her age Everday's the same for him Walking by he thinks of what he was back then (than the world we live in)

Easily they go away
All the rules that he was told those simple days
Everyone just moved away

(Hey you little blue eyed girl)
Little girl where will you go Won't you stay outside just a little bit longer now?

(2x):
In the end will we find out
all of the answers
Will we always need to pretend
When we step inside of the mirror
And in the end
falling faster, falling back
Holding closer to the world we live in
