like a ton of bricks it hits before she finishes her sentence as the predicate predicts a swift ending to my presence I could see it coming from a mile away at six hundred miles an hour a surprise attack, tora-tora kamikaze, no looking back. a tactic of considerable power it doesn't matter now what I should have done then my heart was in the right place at the wrong time again in close to half a second my composure was lost, and I had found my modesty. everything not in the dumpster was otherwise tossed", her voice lacking sincerity it's you plus me divided by inadequacy times my denial minus three words we threw around and around and a why cant you in tang douplahnu?

! a phonecall is made at midnight that wont let her fall asleep
, her ringer's turned off but she can hear the answering machine

if you want to get away you'll have to go through me or walk over my dead body and you just may , the ship is sinking I'm the captain, there's no escape,
if you want to get away you're gonna have to go through me.
