I can see that you're not doing well, or so it seems
You used to hold your head so high
And with such pride
You're too young to be this broken girl
You've come too far to just let go

This could be your stand
You don't have to watch your world crumble
Or watch it fall
This could have been over by now

Now you're making progress
But it takes time
To undo all the damage that's been done
Building bridges on foundations of innocence
To make amends to the doubtful and the cynics

You can make it I swear
Though I know it seems destined to fail
Just carry on
When the dust has settled you'll know
Who was there and who let you go
You've got the open sky by your side
This could be your stand
You don't have to watch your world crumble
Or watch it fall
This could have been over by now

Now you're making progress
But it takes time
To undo all the damage that's been done
Building bridges on foundations of innocence
To make amends to the doubtful and the cynics
