You can hear the world promising you things when you
are young
You can hear the world promising you things when you
are young

The struggle for success brings this emptiness Well I would like to build a fortress With every pillow sheet and blanket in the house Crawl inside to dream and never come out

You can hear the world promising you things when you
are young
You can hear the world promising you things when you
are young

I take these multi-colored strings,
And tie them wall to wall
It doesn't have to be understood
It is my fun between the job
And it's mine all mine it is my art To pass this time that no one's got

You can hear the world promising you things when you
are young
You can hear the world promising you things when you
are young

Well you are young if you want to be
You are young if you want to be
