This ordeal has made you fret, but you know it's not that bad

We thought ourselves beyond it's reach

Well, it seems we've both been had

See, it flows so easily

A ruthless piece of art

And it grows and speaks of mysteries to be

And flips itself to show the deuce of hearts

The riddle wants to be

It rubs our noses in nature's demands and it wrestles our dearest doubts out of our hands

There is a balance of hope and despair

How we bleed for it!

In our need for it all sense disappears

The riddle wants to be
