He won the race the judges concluded
He was the better man, he'd come from victory
A hesitation a one time show or place
His self would not allow he had to be the best

He had denied his urges cause they would of Drained his strength that battle had been one
With side effects a few
He may have dropped the world
He could not have let us down
Dana I hope she's in a better place

She aced the test a grade above the rest
She felt the curve
A 93% was not enough to feed her fix
She needs that perfect score
The endorphin rush she loved
It would opiate her
She had denied all allegations of her loneliness
That battle had been won with scars still under wraps
She may have dropped the world
She would not let us down
Endorphin rush she loved
She may have dropped the world
