I've picked a pen to write a story
That I see
When things burn in eternity
It's the only thing I see
I dunno how I behaved when everything just fell apart
I dunno why I can't just cry and let the sorrow be washed
I try to look back and imagine
Things could have been far worse
But how much worse it could it have been
When my life has passed through hell
I had no friend to tell this tale
No company to wipe my eyes
And when I look back
All I see is sorrow
And no signs of happy life
So I if despite of all this
I can dream of flying high
And not just dream of flying high
But even try with all my heart
And I'm rising in the sky now
I never think of going down
So you can follow my steps
To reach where you want to be 'Cause life's too short to watch
And say that like this things should be

Yeah! it's starting, the beginning of my life
So all I want to tell you that
After being so hard on me
That things will turn on your favor
If you know how to take the steps
And it make big altogether
'Cause the world will only watch
It won't help when you fall down
It'll only laugh when you make your mistakes
But admiration comes only after success
And I tell you all that love is bullshit
No attraction, nor respect, it's only dollar's effect
If my pocket's empty they won't even look at me
If I'm a millionaire, they'll try to sleep with me

You can tell
Where I've been wrong
But there's nothing to tell me
And you know
After all

As long as my voice is going they'll look up to me
But as soon as I'm gone
I'll be no one
I'll be out of everyone's dream
Well, this is all I gotta say in this very short rhyme
So just wait for the next time
When I come up the big thing

[Thank you!
Thank you!
For hearing this
It's a piece of sh*t]
