Memories crash in my dreams
Like a siren in my sleep, oh what a scene, oh what a dream
They're coming through the looking glass
My broken hearts, my faded past,
It seems that I can breathe

But the promises are meant to keep
The love alive and the passion deep, oh I,
Oh I can't find the reasons for these scars
Or why our love would fall apart,
Oh I, oh I, I'm so naive,
I'm just so naive

Faster than a shooting star
And brighter than the midday sun it's hope, and it's alive
I stay a while and rest my feet
In the land where shattered hearts still beat
I breathe, and I'm at peace

But the promises are meant to keep
The love alive and the passion deep, oh I,
Oh I can't find the reasons for these scars
Or why our love would fall apart,
Oh I, oh I, I'm so naive,
I'm just so naive

And what would you say, if it never really went away
Would you cry for the years you knew you lost
And would you take back the lies
And could you ever look me in the eyes
And say that I will love you till the end
I'm so naive, I'm just so naive, I'm just so naive, I'm so naive, I'm so naive
