As I open up the door to find you I blink and then your gone given to infinity Blanket in meditative obsession memories now do race through my mind symphonies Of thought I'm unable to find to fill the void between my soul and my thoughts Here is how it all began You tortured heart left to trembling hands that tried to grip the sand locked In an hourglass the gray shapes that blind you the demons will find you and Lead you back home you satisfied the craving when all your raving lunacy Brought you to your knees and I still remember the words you spoke you'll never Leave And I'm still waiting for you to return but the truth is your better off Locked far away
And as I look beneath the floors where you once dwelled I'm finding evidence of How you must have felt a book of photographs containing your own face but Missing your eyes and piles of razorblades and by your bedside lays a book of Half finished venomous scriptures tale of calamity and crumbling existence Humanities frailties and divine resistance and as you know watch me wander Through madness craving all my complicated festering sadness believing all These walls are closing around me echoing all these thoughts back through my Head I'll satisfy the craving when all my raving lunacy brings me to my knees And I still remember the words you spoke they'll never leave Lay on your back In cloudy fields of forever look at the clouds in brilliant patterns so Clever disintegrate into the earth and remember the feelings we shared about Our sickening surrender and I just don't know how to explain what you took when You left me a piece of my mind my soul my breath my existence leaving only Moments tattooed in my memories and for the love of god I cannot accept what Infinity took from me I cry out on these sleepless nights hoping that you'll Somehow feel my energy you satisfied the craving when all your raving lunacy Brought you too your knees and I still remember the words you spoke they'll Never leave.
