Thought I'd seen the last of you, falling again
I'm a roof and I need sun to fit under our dime Thought it was the sky, thought the cracked plaster was night
Chips and pain reflected light, light upon you Thought the water wave was fine
Blending in with ice on heavy

Chorus:

Out in the woods in the pouring rain
Our telephones will never ring
Our telephones will never ring

Is this the worst place you could be?
Stuck beneath me, buried deep
Hope this wasn't what you dreamt elbows up and trying to breathe
I thought you were the moon
Flying sideways like you do eyes craters small and blue shining brightly
Looking simple and surreal
Talking in your sleep, saying goodnight!

Chorus:

Out in the woods in the pouring rain
Our telephones well they never ring
Our telephones well they never ring
Out in the woods in the pouring rain
Our telephones will never ring
Our telephones will never ring
I must have fallen on you!
I must have fallen on you!
I must have fallen on you!
