So wake up run your lips across your fingers till you find
Some scent of yourself that you can hold up high
To remind yourself that you didn't die On a day that was so crappy whole and happy you're alive

You seem so bruised
And it's beautiful as it's reflecting off from you as it shines You're in the bathroom carving holiday designs into yourself
Hoping no one will find you but they found you
And they took you
And you somehow survived

So wake up and if the holidays don't hollow out your eyes
Then press yourself against whatever You find to be beautiful and trembling with life Because I'm so happy you didn't die
