Sitting on the park bench watching the world pass me by, watching people so in love they can't even see what is true and what is real. Falling down into a lover's stream happiness comes within the heart nobody can make you feel safe unless you feel safe in yourself. Falling down so hard I can't get up finding the strength within one's self. Thinking love is all fun and games until later down the road it turns into a tradgey. Falling hard for you seeing you stand there wondering what you are thinking about. Watching you pass me by noticing I caught your eye hoping you realize life is a tradgey without you or it could be a miracle. Hoping one day you will find out who you are and let it out into the world. Sitting there on the park bench hoping you will just say Hi.
