It started out as necessity, for my own survival to feed
my starving body.

It was eat or die, and with every mouthful I felt myself
gain strength.

Unrivaled.

This new sensation becomes more than addiction, it is my soul purpose.

I know that now I'm on the path to immortality, or at least as close as man

can ever get.

As I consume men who doubt and question my gift,
their essence floods

my bones, their last breath fills my lungs.

I touched the face of perfection through devouring the imperfect.

I touched the face of perfection and have transcended
my own mortality.
