I am a lover, I am a shame
I am appalled by the things that I fame
I am a lover but I've had my share of flirting
With the darkest affairs

And you can find me here
With my head against the wall
Lost in my regrets and every time
I fall you catch me in your hands

You circle me like a wedding band
I have a lover, faithful and true
He cares for me in all that I do

I have a lover, my song
He has sung with love on
His lips and grace on his tongue
And you can find me here with my head
Against the wall

Lost in my regrets and every time
I fall you catch me in your hands
You circle me like a wedding band

A promise from Heaven, a promise from You
A promise to love, I will hold on to God of new beginnings, to You I cry
Teach me how to love, teach me how to die

In death there's forgiveness
And forgiveness calls on new life
So You can find me here with my head
Against the wall

Lost in my regrets and every time I fall
You catch me in your hands
You circle me like a wedding band
A promise from heaven, a promise from You
