if i could travel the world or pass through time to a day gone by would i seek with the keenest of eyes and would i find you if i was lost in a dream or isolated from all we know i'd scratch the surface to look below would i find you, would i find you and when the chips are all down and the walls caving in, when the sky is falling would you be there, take my hand, understand, make it right again

make it right again

if i searched for light in the dark, if i was blinded from all things true would i fall far from the mark or would i find you, would i find you and when i'm at a loss for words would you give sound to my voice would you ask me for another day and would you make a choice for us, rejoice for us, or would you walk away

this house is now divided, all of the details are decided and there's nothing more to say now anyway it doesn't matter the intention, forever's faded, faded to now and then

and if i came to the end knowing my last wish had been ignored tell me
could my faith be restored if i found you, if i found you, if i found you
