Close your eyes
And see what's left behind you
You can't conceal your lies
The truth will always find you
When you're hiding in the open
Know that you were never worth it
Just another of your tokens
I never should have died for you

Take my breath away
You've taken everything else from me
You could've had it all
But who knew it could be so easy
Take my breath away
You've taken everything else from me
You could've had it all
But who knew it could be so easy
Run away
You always run from everything
You never want to stay and see
But I want hold you back this time
Know that you were never worth it
You always turn your back on us
And cut your fucking losses

Take my breath away
You've taken everything else from me
You could've had it all
But who knew it could be so easy
Take my breath away
You've taken everything else from me
You could've had it all
But who knew it could be so easy
