Look at the sun baby, it's ok, it's not too bright Blendin' in the sky, makin' me feel stuck, I don't know why
Like in the desert, I remember, I was a child White light, just like then, dust hangs all around and over our eyes

(so I'm) hangin', hangin', there's no need for me to go
I'm layin' on solid ground Nothin' changes, nothin' new for me to know Same ol' faces, traces, same ol' sun

The tap is broken baby, it's been broken for a while I'm thirsty; my mouth is dry, as water makes its way from the counter to the floor

There's no point in hidin', little drops of wasted life I know where you are, and where you think you're going- you'll never make it to the door

Look at us baby, tryin' to make it through one more day
I called you on the phone, they said you went away, where did you go?
Look at me baby, I keep on lyin' to myself I know it doesn't work, but I still ask myself- where would I go?
