"Trust"

I was born at the beginning so they say They say if you pass the first winter you'll be fine
I had grown to think the worst was behind me Little had I known what was waiting down the line

I was wrong to think that you'd love me
That you'll love me even if I stay
And by your tone I believed that you'd save me From being stuck alone on a road in the middle of the day

You crawled in beside me, your hands nestled upon my chest
And promises were promised and confessions were confessed
Then you fell asleep so peacefully, I thought there was heaven on this earth
Then the rain came pouring down

I was wrong to trust an old friend To trust an old friend to see me through It's been too long, you say when I ask you If you remember if what we had was true Trust no one, mama keeps on saying
And daddy never trusted anyone in his life
Not even his only companion
Not even his alienated wife

You...

The cold, freezing night said, come closer So come closer, we did
Is it an act of fate when a child is born?
Or is it just an act of a random seed?

Carry on I keep on saying I keep on praying I will learn to trust again
For me the sun has shown in your eyes and your eyes are still Tattooed on my heart like the mark of Cain

YouÂ...

You crawled in beside me, your hands burned my open
chest

And your promises were broken but I know they did exist

You may have long forgotten me, but I can still recall your lips

Saying I was the only one
