One day you come across a cave which you explore all alone Hours have gone by and by and you come across some mossy cobblestone
You get out your pickaxe and dig your way in You find this is where somebody else has been
But the chest inside is still there You wonder why they didn't care
Upon opening this lonely chest
Theres one thing you find inside
A journal thats shaped like a disk with the name on it Dr. Leon Sisk
The first page is a biography Archaeology, Mineralogy, Photology, Zoology
A smart man no less, How did he become journaless?
The last page of his journal however looks to be of a daring endeavour
A door of some kind with phantom flames
And a man and a pig strapped together Instructions were left on that very last page the journal itself looks to be of some age
But I gathered materials for several days
This door, this portal, I soon shall raise

I am building something different Wheres this doctor can I save him
I am done I add the fire
Can I save this doctor from death Is he here in this place he writes about Is he in the nether...

I step into his world
I see his experiments gone wrong its a hellish place, there are things to face and thats when I see the pigmen Its so sad its so sad its so sad poor souls they didn't stand a chance I wonder if they're miners or if they're zombies in a trance

I found him dead...

... and alone.
