Waiting, waiting for apologies
We're waiting, we're both expecting sympathies
Another hour is gone
We sulk and carry on so stubborn-hearted

And we're waiting, we're marking secret borders now
And we're waiting, we're in our separate corners now
We wait for night to fall
We can't even recall what got this started

Now is the time and here is the place
'Cause we lose these hours casting blame
When we should be saying grace
We can find a better way, we can stand on a common ground
We can work this out between us before the sun goes down
We come together

Waiting, we don't know what we're trying to prove
But we're waiting until the other makes a move
We stick to our facades
We only speak in nods and sullen glances

And we're waiting, our shadows just get longer now
But all my love is both I'm feeling longer now
We need to start again
Before this day has stolen all our chances

Now is the time and here is the place
'Cause we lose these hours casting blame
When we should be saying grace
We can find a better way, we can stand on a common
We can work this out between us before the sun goes
down
We come together

Now is the time and here is the place
'Cause we lose these hours casting blame
When we should be saying grace
We can find a better way, we can stand on a common

We can work this out between us before the sun goes
down

Now is the time and here is the place
'Cause we lose these hours casting blame
When we should be saying grace
We can find a better way, we can stand on a common
We can work this out between us before the sun goes
down

Now is the time and here is the place
'Cause we lose these hours casting blame
When we should be saying grace
We can find a better way, we can stand on a common

We can work this out between us before the sun goes
down
We come together
