You know it's generally known you got everything at home
Kisses out of desperation bring you more aggravation
And you don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close

You bring out your souvenirs soak them wet with your tears
You lose your imagination out of more aggravation
And you don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close

You turn red with rage but act your age
Only thing that your regret you need more time to forget
And you don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close

You know it's generally known you got everything at home
Kisses out of desperation bring you more aggravation
And you don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close

You turn red with rage but act your age
Only thing that your regret you need more time to forget
You don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close

And you don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close
You don't come close, you don't come close, you don't come close
