And so you say that you don't mind
About the time we spent just being friends and Thinking of a way to be together
So we keep searching for a light
To bring the life in what's so dead and gone now
I wonder how it ended up this way
I got a table full of funny letters
But your words are all that matters

You're leaving today away from here
There's no more reason for us to believe This feeling we have is something more than friendship
That's what I hear you say

So now you say we're falling down
Our love is messed up, you need some more fun
Shutting the door you know it would be better
And please don't try to read my mind
The only words you'll read are "just leave me alone now"
I wonder how it ended up this way
I got a table full of funny letters
But your words are all that matters
