Hey man, don't you see our world is crumbling down It's vanishing, falling apart in our hands We're still in time to stop this failing Just wake up your life is calling

Minds and eyes stuck to a tv screen The problem of society Where no one can be different Take your son to a place where he can run Make him learn that there's a life of fun And he will never let you down We will have no future if we only want the best for ourselves

Don't think that all Mother Nature gave us Lasts forever, we are losing what we don't deserve We're still in time to stop this failing Just wake up your life is calling

I'm not a prophet, I would never pretend to be I am simply someone who opened up his eyes, You can't stand back and ignore these cries
