the bell tolls the tears of midnight's gloom and opens the gates to twilight's tomb

the black sky above

and the darkness inside me consoles me, so soothing consumes me, so slowly

no light will shine

no shadows thrown

no mask will hide

no mercy shown
the sky tells the tale of endless doom and opens the doorway unto the room where our eyes our blind to the portal opening

can't you see, me bleeding misery, sustains me

the clock strikes the hour when darkness looms and echoes the rise of shepherd moons the gale flies over

and the raven is watching

he has seen me weeping

and holds me in his wings the sky it grows darker still the white mists rise over the hill the forces stir, the storm will break shattering through the night to wake of wind and sea

of sand and stone

never to be

so cold and gray
