In my bedroom, in my bedroom, in my bedroom

I seek a foreign night. Aren't we the same, you and I, all our love gathers the storm?

Or should we share a brain, in our minds, all our love
follows the road.

I won't beg you, I won't beg you, I won't beg you, not
with certain words.

Helen your eyes are frozen in my brain

Helen you are a gone world, where I remain.

In my bedroom, in my bedroom, in my bedroom

I seek a foreign light. Aren't we the same you and I, all our love gathers the storm.

Or should we share a brain in our minds, all our love
follows the road.

I won't beg you, I won't beg you, I won't beg you, not
with certain words.

Helen your eyes are frozen in my brain

Helen you are lost world where I remain.

And all my dreams move away, I let them escape
And all my dreams move away, I let them escape.
