let's see how long we can keep this going this is a personal best for time spent locked in conversation without some kind of fucking test we both want to play the victim because of how this hurts us but that's the thing with martyrs, more than one defeats the purpose your move, heartache...

'cause i remember times when the only thing that kept me strong was a hollow song
a holdout on the lawn lying on my back holding out for a heart attack and there will be a time when the only song you hear will be mine won't you be mine?
and i will try to say
something kind today

you're such a pretty permutation of everything i'll ever be an oh-so-subtle consolation you make that clear to me your move, heartbreak...

was a hollow song
won't you be mine?
something kind today
