This time i'm not falling down, this time i'm breaking out.

Here we are again, loneliness my oldest friend.
Who was I to think i could forget you for someone else?
Tossed into a world full of death and despair.
I thought I was a burden that only you could bare.

You took a part of me and now i can't get it back.
You took a part of me and now i can't get it back from you

Searching, not knowing where to look.
Running, not going anywhere. You wont find safety there.

Roll the dice and count your lies, your my extinguished firefly.

Searching not knowing where to look. Not knowing where to look for you.
Running, not going anywhere. You wont find safety there.

Now that you're with him, does he give you the attention you need? Does he listen when no one else does?
Well I did, well i fucking did.
You just couldn't keep to the script for one night in the spotlight.
