Anybody who knows can tell right away that you are a lonely girl
But nobody knows . . so you go through life by yourself
I can't disagree, that's a way to be in a terribly hostile world
Maybe you and me can go off and be alone by ourselves

I've been watching things I've been watching things
I've been watching things I've been watching things
I've been watching things I've been watching things

I know how it goes, I'm another of those who want to impose on you
I can't disagree, it would probably be a story you know Put your mind at ease, in matters like these I quite resemble you
Most of my time I'm all alone with nowhere to go

I've been watching things I've been watching things
I've been watching things I've been watching things
I've been watching things I've been watching things

There are so many things . . . so many things we don't do ~ cause there's nobody there Think of all the things . . . of all of the things that would be so nice with someone to share with somebody there

If you want to be clean I will immerse you If you want to be warm I'll be your sun
If you want to be dinner I will serve you Happy meals are so much fun If you want to be outside we can go to where the outside people are
If you want to be quiet
