And I don't see you again
And I just want you to know that my loving has no end
If tomorrow never comes and I don't see you again
And I just want you to know that my loving has no end

Yeah, they say that nothing's ever promised Gotta keep the ones around me that are honest
'Cause there ain't a guarantee that you gonna get it
'cause you want it, right?
And my abuela's getting old, I need to see her Before she up and leave us 'cause she off to meet the reaper
And I don't wanna lose her 'fore I really get to know her I told her that I loved her, I just wanna really show her My circle getting smaller, every day I'm growing older I see my fucking breath, I guess my heart is getting colder
They doubt you and then they see your name and crowd around you
The ones that call you fam the ones that care the least about you
If tomorrow never come, I wanna kiss my mom Maybe find my father and forgive him for the shit he done
Then I find the girls I did the same shit to And hoping that they forgive me like how I forgive you, right?
But nothing is for certain, it's time to take a bow Yeah, we reached our final curtain

If tomorrow never comes and I don't see you again
And I just want you to know that my loving has no end Tomorrow never comes, tomorrow never comes
We sitting and we staring in the barrel of a gun

If tomorrow never comes, I'll burn the capital In hoping that the White House will turn to shrapnel
'Cause politicians use tragedies just to catapult And launch they own careers, hoping that it make us cast a vote
I find the cast that gave my cousin a taste

They gave my aunt a first taste and I lay them to waste,
right?

I hate to see my family in struggle with addiction
But I'm cool with dope boys, it's such a fucking contradiction

And if tomorrow never comes, I'll find religion Maybe then I'll find my little half-brother and little sister
I heard my little brother had cancer and didn't hit him
I was young and the last thing I needed was more commitment

But now he's in remission so tomorrow got to come for him

We ain't even spoken and I'm back to feeling numb again

Back to telling every chick I fucked that she the one
again

Knowing that I'll soon be making up for it

If tomorrow never comes and I don't see you again
And I just want you to know that my loving has no end
Tomorrow never comes, tomorrow never comes
We sitting and we staring in the barrel of a gun

If tomorrow never comes, I'll crash a couple cars Maybe smash a couple broads, shit I'll probably fuck
'em raw

'Cause ain't no consequences when your world is over with

I snort a couple lines 'cause I'm sick of living this sober shit

Try to tell my nieces that I loved them and I wished I would've seen them

Instead of beefing with their mother and I tell my older sister

That I'm sorry that I judged her and I should've been supportive

Could've been a better brother and I run into my city, yeah, I run into the Rock

Take my peoples off them corners, take my people off that block

And I go into my school and tell my teachers that I've popped

Even though they never thought that I would be shit but a flop

The way that I'm living, I never would know when I'll be leaving

And where I'mma go, nothing is coming and we never grow

Running to nothing left us broke, yeah so if tomorrow never comes

I want my people knowing that they were the ones I loved
