It's difficult, it's very tough
I said to the man who'd been sleeping rough
To sit within a fragrant breeze
All among the nodding trees
That hang heavy with the stuff

He threw his arms around my neck
Brushed the tear from my cheek
And held my soft white hand
He was an understanding man
And he did not even barely hardly speak

Easy money
Rain it down on the wife and the kids
Rain it down on the house where we live
Rain until you got nothing left to give
And rain that ever loving stuff down on me

All the things for which my heart yearns
Gives joy in diminishing returns
Kissed me on mouth
His hands they headed south
And my cheek, it burned

Money, man, it is a bitch
The poor, they spoil it for the rich
With my face pressed in the clover
I wondered when this would be over
And at home we are all so guilty sad
Easy money
Pour it down the open drain
Pour it all through my veins
Pour it down, yeah, let it rain
And pour that ever loving stuff down on me

Now, I'm sitting pretty down on the bank
Life shuffles past at a low interest rate
In the money colored meadows
And all the interesting shadows
They leap up, then dissipate

Easy money

Easy money
Easy money
Rain it down on the wife and the kids
Rain it down on the house where we live
Rain it down until you got nothing left to give
And rain that ever loving stuff down on me

Easy money
Easy money
Easy money
