Boatman calls from the lake
A lone loon dives upon the water
I put my hand over her
Down in the lime tree arbour

The wind in the trees is whispering
Whispering low that I love her
She puts her hand over mine
Down in the lime tree arbour

Every breath that I breathe
And every place I go
There is a hand that protects me
And I do love her so

There always be suffering
It flows through life like water
I put my hand over her
Down in the lime tree arbour

The boatman he has gone
The loons have flown for cover
She puts her hand over mine
Down in the lime tree arbour

Through every word that I speak
And every thing I know
Well, there is a hand that protects me
And I do love her so
