Bonnie: I know my heart, don't care what people say. All I know is that I've never felt like this. And besides, I wouldn't change him if I could, no man's all good.

Blanche: I always knew, what I was taking on. But I always felt that I could change his ways. Even if my man will never fall in line glad he's mine.

Both: 'Cause you love who you love, and you can't help how you make. You don't have no say, your heart decides, it's that simple I'm afraid. Yes you love who you love common sense may say it's wrong, there's a part of him you know is wild, maybe that's what made you love him all along.

Bonnie: I only care that he's mine and I am his. There ain't no rules that's how it is. Most girls would hate to be standing in my shoes, but true love's something you don't choose.

Both: Oh, you love who you love, and you go with what you feel.

Blanche: And you nail the thing, what's down the road while the fairy tale seems real.

Both: Oh you love who you love, common sense may say it's wrong.

Bonnie: There's a part of him you know is wild, maybe that's what made you love him all along.

Both: Could be that's what made you love him all along.
