Loneliness is colorblind
All I saw was rainbows there was no grey
But now we're falling out, we're in between Something's wrong I said it now it's okay
So what if I'm waking up to every sound at night
We're gonna be wrong if if we can't ever make it right

I think I better find someone new
I think I better find something true
We gotta stop, living a lie, this fiction's not who we are
I think I better find someone new
I think I better find something true
Look in your heart,
You know this beautiful picture's not who we are

Watching every color fade
Those feelings in those photographs are over
Nothing's all I'll ever be, I can't be the one you need to hold ya
So what if I'm waking up to every sound at night
What if it hurts us more to keep it all inside

I think I better find someone new
I think I better find something true
We gotta stop, living a lie, this fiction's not who we are
I think I better find someone new
I think I better find something true
Look in your heart,
You know this beautiful picture's not who we are

Uh oh, uh oh
I can't go on, so beautiful
I gotta find a day without you
I can't go on, it's bringing me down
I gotta go on without you, yeah

I think I better find someone new

I think I better find something true
We gotta stop, living a lie, this fiction's not who we are
I think I better find someone new
I think I better find something true
Look in your heart,
You know this beautiful picture's not who we are
