This towns too small
When you run around like you do
Taking things
That just don't belong to you

Picture yourself inside a room now
Imagine the freedom that you'll lose
Well, baby, it all comes back to haunt you
In the end
And baby, it hurts the most
When you don't have a friend
And now you don't know who you can trust
And now you're stuck
On the wrong side of the fence
Baby, it all comes back to haunt you
In the end

I know you're scared
Somebody will find you out
But you're not aware
We know what you're all about

Picture yourself inside a room now
All of the guilt comes down on you
Well, baby, it all comes back to haunt you
In the end

And baby, it hurts the most

When you don't have a friend
And you don't know who you can trust
And now you're stuck
On the wrong side of the fence
Baby, it all comes back to haunt you
In the end

You cry all alone
Nobody will see you through
You made your choice
Theres nothing that you can do

Cause, baby, it all comes back to haunt you

In the end

And baby, it hurts the most
When you don't have a friend
And you don't know who you can trust
And now you're stuck
On the wrong side of the fence
Baby, it all comes back to haunt you
It all comes back to haunt you
It all comes back to haunt you
In the end
