This whole thing keeps moving It's blurred to me are you waiting for the calls to come through come clean

On rides back, the sky is waving white flags again it won't protect me from all of the fights I can't win

Honestly, can you trust me cause we've been around the world with this before,
and honestly, just to think this could make me, someone that fails you, is something that scares me too

so where was the starting line I can't blame it on you, besides It's a long way to Georgia you're reading my mind

Remind me of tickets and runways someday call me up when you don't care I'll make it my fault if you can't stay

I feel safer with somebody right here holding me down

Honestly, can you trust me
cause we've been around the world with this before,
and honestly, just to think this could make me,
someone that fails you, is something that scares me

(All I'm making is all I'm breaking)

Honestly, you can trust me we've been around the world, it's better you left me here Honestly, you can trust me
we've been around the world,
don't forget about me, it takes all of me just to think this could make me bigger than empty, and better you left me here
