the city waits
you, you're starting to dissappear to turn into something else something I dont want to be and I
I used to believe in this I tore myself apart for it but I wont anymore cause I can see it in the way you wont start slipping until something shows I see it in the way your skin grows numb these walk all over days but I never even told you I never even told you and now it's dripping off the walls again it's coming up everywhere and I think it's going to win cause I can see it in the way you wont

start slipping until something shows

but I never even told you
I never even told you

I swear sometimes the city waits for you to wake I swear sometimes
I'm caught without and I start to break

but I never even told you
I never even told you
