Take a glimpse your still not here today eleven drive is just a block away and everytime your soul is still resisting at this time the truth is to hard to see but you know you'll always let me down and never get it right you'll always live alone never be anything at all open up your eyes and see the truth you've sewn

Go run into the town you never told told them how you seemed so flawless so tonight you will be on the hunt again where did you spend your time alive

you've been so serious since you left eleven drive

I've seen you since? your still not here today eleven drive is just a block away if the moon was a mirror you might see what a monster you've become and they hunt for you as you hunt for me you never told them how you seemed so flawless so tonight you will be on the hunt again where did you spend your time alive
