The black sky and the stars above
the city lights collided
and you brought the life back to the night.

The street lamps that flickered on illuminate your eyes in a slow dance.
And then moved along with the fireflies.

And even the birds can see it.
Seismically shifting back and forth.
I'm falling in, I'm falling into love.

A bird cries softly in the distance
as we close our minds.
And the stars begin to drift away.

A sun rose gently against the orange light in tight bows
of clouds that now had come alive.

And even the birds can see it.

Seismically shifting back and forth.
I'm falling in, I'm falling into love.

Don't wait til the moon is near,
just tell me I'm yours my dear.
I'm falling in, I'm falling into love.

Taking, taking all our time.
Taking, taking in the sky.
Watching through the night.

And even the birds can see it.
Seismically shifting back and forth.
I'm falling in, I'm falling into love.

Don't wait til the moon is near,
just tell me I'm yours my dear.
I'm falling in, I'm falling into love.
