Moving on like the lifting dawn
dark inside the trees deeper in, going faster than
I know that I should be
I know that I should be

Fallen branches and abandoned cabins rotted over time
I'm afraid and I'm refined
I bet that you're just fine
I bet that you're just fine

Following the trails into the woods
Far behind the meadow where I stood
I'm dithering in circles by myself
I call for you to find me but you've found somebody else

Clouding sky, oh the clouding sky freezes up my bones What I've honed on the path alone making my way home

making my way home

Following the trails into the woods
Far behind the meadow where I stood
I'm dithering in circles by myself
I call for you to find me but you've
found somebody else

I'm refined
But you're just fine

Moving on like the lifting dawn
dark inside the trees
deeper in, going faster than
I know that I should be
I know that I should be
