Early in the morning, too hung over to go back to sleep.
Every sound is amplified, every light is so dizzying.
Listen for a while to the neighbors having sex,
Wishing I could lay my aching head upon your breast.
Can't I dream another dream?
Can't I close my eyes and wonder back to sleep?

But I'm daydreaming about you.
I know that it's wrong.
That I'm daydreaming about you.
Cause I've been daydreaming for so long.

A bloody mary afternoon waste my time out in the sun.
Hum myself some melodies maybe I could sing you one.
Maybe I could find you sitting down at the cafe.
Maybe I could join you at your table today.
Can't I just get what I want?
Can't I be the man that steals away you heart?

But I'm daydreaming about you.
I know that it's wrong.
That I'm daydreaming about you.
I've been daydreaming for so long.
Yeah, I've been daydreaming for so long.

Later in the evening, I take the bus down to see the show.
You'll be behind the bar, I'll get a beer and lay low.
I'm just a kid that gets his drinks from you,
who stands around and doesn't have a clue.
Can't I hold you close to me?
Can't I ever say to you just what I mean?

But I'm daydreaming about you.
I know that it's wrong.
That I'm daydreaming about you.
Seven daydreamin' for so long.
Oh yeah, I've been daydreaming for so long.
