You get so tired of chasing dreams, you think that
nothing's true.
You start to question everything, everything you do.
Feeling scared but you don't know why, so you tell
yourself you're doing all right.
You're sick of all the empty days that make you so
afraid of the night.

And if you try to read a book and get between the lines,
It doesn't matter where you look, you're only wasting time.
When you meet somebody else and you try to think of
something to say,
Even while you stand there talking, you know your mind
is drifting away.

You get so tired of chasing dreams, you think that
nothing's true.
You start to question everything, everything you do.
Feeling scared but you don't know why, so you tell
yourself you're doing all right.
You're sick of all the empty days that make you so
afraid of the night.
