

Junior Smalls And The Criminals "Cross That Bridge"

Visit "Cross That Bridge" on MotoLyrics.com

The blue and orange meld somewhere in the sky
Miles away from thoughts of you and I
Your mind is farther than the distant sun
From everything that we might have become
But do you really wanna let it go?
I bet it's never the same

Once you cross that bridge
After first loves
It's a million miles from anywhere you've ever been
And I don't think I wanna know
Once you cross that bridge
After first loves
The ground beneath your feet feels so unsure
So insecure

Cause I see the backyards and the parks
And lovers genuine embrace

Can't help but wonder, 'will it pass me by?'
When I see that un-fulfillment on your face
But do you really wanna let it go?
I bet it's never the same

Once you cross that bridge
After first loves
It's a million miles from anywhere you've ever been
And I don't think I wanna know
Once you cross that bridge
After first loves
The ground beneath your feet feels so unsure
So insecure

To give up such familiarity
How could it not be a mistake?
To spend your days with someone else
That doesn't really know you
Doesn't really know you like I do

Visit Junior Smalls And The Criminals page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

