You see I lie in bed for hours but I get no rest
From this feeling (that) always seems to well up
Deep in my chest
A simple fear of missing all the signs
What I'm supposed to do next
In this world of catch-all clauses and adjustable rates
I wanna sneak away one night and get picked up at the gates
But there's nowhere to go so I'll just stretch on out and wait

And I'm not scared of forever
But it's a science just to hold it together
And I'll take this feeling wherever
It takes me and guides my endeavors

You see I lie in bed for hours but I get no rest
But I still don't wanna move because my mind is a mess
Nowadays we're our only enemy I fret
Through the thorns of our own faults
We prick ourselves on the vine
But the flowers look so good we fall for it every time
(I) guess a little bit of pain reminds us we're alive

And I'm not scared of forever
But it's a science just to hold it together
And I'll take this feeling wherever
It takes me and guides my endeavors

And if it takes me, it might
A thousand times or more
To get this thing right
Until I reach that shore
And I'll tread water all night
Till I see the morning or Succumb to this long fight,
Resolution is in store
Either way, it's alright
Either way, it's alright

And I'm not scared of forever

But it's a science just to hold it together
And I'll take this feeling wherever
It takes me and guides my endeavors
Through this life
