I see your face in everything I do
And when I see those Southside lights
I know you're still there too

In the scheme of things, I've found these kinds of nights
So meaningful, yet disappointing
But I still make myself go
And I know it's kinda shitty but I sometimes joke
You didn't even show up to your own benefit show
Faces you don't even know with R.I.P. tattoos
Like they knew ya for a decade
But I ain't even blue, you know why?

I see your face in everything I do
And when I go these familiar places
I know you're still there too
I see your face in everything I do
And when I see those Southside lights
I know you're still there too

In the seam of things,
I've found (that) what ties us up

Can be so easily disjointed
We have so little control
And I know it's kinda wrong but I crack myself up When you're checkin' in on me, do you look down or up?
I know I'm with you either way cause we were one and the same
We can sing harmony with angels
Or shoot dice in the flames, either way

I see your face in everything I do
And when I go these familiar places
I know you're still there too
I see your face in everything I do
And when I see those Southside lights
I know you're still there too

You said you buried your heart in this town

Just wait till you dig it up
Just wait till you dig it up

I see your face in everything I do
And when I see those Southside lights
I know you're still there too
