her lips painted red her heart black as stone destroys everyone who gets a piece of luck laying awake in darkness concealing all forgiveness she's way down way down with the lonely laughing like she doesn't know me
if the world would end tomorrow I would see the joke's
on me her kiss feels like sex her touch brings me back I know I'm not the only one wanting more hiding in her own shadow no angel dares to follow
if the world would end tomorrow I would see the joke's
the weight of the world is too much to hold she smiles without any style I'm waiting for her to open her soul but i don't think she'll ever know
if the world would end tomorrow I would see the joke's
on me
she's way down way down with the lonely
if the world would end tomorrow i would see the joke's
