I've been a bad girl, I've been a bad girl
I want to be, good again

Threw the gun out the window, oh it lit my cigarette
It dropped into the river, it's always easy to forget
Buried my innocence deep into the ground
Fell along the interstate, heading south

Chanting, I've been a bad girl!
I wipe the blood, from my hands again

We met at a Honky Tonk, oh his eyes crept to mine
I had a lonely heart to give, and he took it in no time
He gave me lies, I gave him love
That was our trade
But he hooked me up too tight and that was his mistake
That was his mistake

And I was chanting, I've been a bad girl!
I wipe the blood, from my hands again

Hell hath no fury now, for what you've done to me
The devil's on my shoulder, and he doesn't disagree
He thought it was his game, but it's not the devil that is grim
But in the end, it was I who threw the dirt over him

Chanting I've, been a bad girl! I've been a bad girl, I want to be good again
