

David Gelman "Looking Back"

Visit "Looking Back" on MotoLyrics.com

Looking back, what would I say
To the person I was that day?
I would tell him not to squander the hours
And live every moment within each day

Time moves on and though we don't dwell
On what really matters or those we know well
Next thing we know we find ourselves older
With life going right and there's no one to tell

I remember my mother, my father, my brother
And all the friends who've passed on
I wasn't looking when somehow or other
I turned and found them all gone

A second chance, won't come around
I tell my young soul to seek solid ground
Stand every day with both feet in the present
For now I know that's where life can be found

I remember my mother, my father, my brother
And all my friends who've passed on
I wasn't looking when somehow or other
I turned and they were gone

So looking back, what would I say
To the man I was yesterday?
I would tell him not to squander the hours
And live every moment within each day

Visit David Gelman page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.