I am nothing, in this world without you
But with you I'm something, so much more
And I know that, true love doesn't always prevail
When I can't show you, what's behind the veil

And if I should lose myself along the way
If my mind should start to roam
When I can't find the right words to say
Help me find my way home
Just help me find my way home

So here I stand now, with my heart wide open
And it seems like, it will never close
But we know the game, that game of hide and seek
And we escape when, the cost seems too steep

And if I should lose myself along the way
If my mind should start to roam
When I can't find the right words to say
Help me find my way home
Just help me find my way home
