

Dustin Neal "Small Town Girls"

Visit "Small Town Girls" on MotoLyrics.com she sees him in the hallway, their eyes meet up just right she tells her friends and the story begins, of a love that lasts a life she wants to tell him how she feels, starts a love letter every night then tears it up, and throws it out, cause it never comes out right (that's alright) cause he starts walking over, in the middle of the night he's been throwing pebbles, when she turns on the light she goes to the window, he's waiting outside small town girls across the world have been waiting for this night

she's had her own apartment, in the city for a while and he stayed in that small town, trying to find his life she lays up in her bedroom, almost every night reading a book, and wishing he was, right there by her side (that's alright)

cause he starts driving over, in the middle of the night she's waiting by the window, when he pulls into the drive she answers the door, lets him inside small town girls across the world have been waiting for
this night

and everything feels just right, they unite, tonight can't control this feeling inside, this fire he rolls his head over, in the middle of the night runs his fingers through her hair, he turns out the light this was the feeling she felt, the very first time small town girls across the world have been waiting for

this night

Visit Dustin Neal page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

